

"I'm 31, and I Believe Headed for the Top": Louis L'Amour Letter

ONE OF THE JOYS of being an MNHS curator is that one never knows what exciting new find awaits.

Recently, MNHS acquisitions librarian Patrick Coleman appeared at my office door and said, "I have something that I think you'll like."

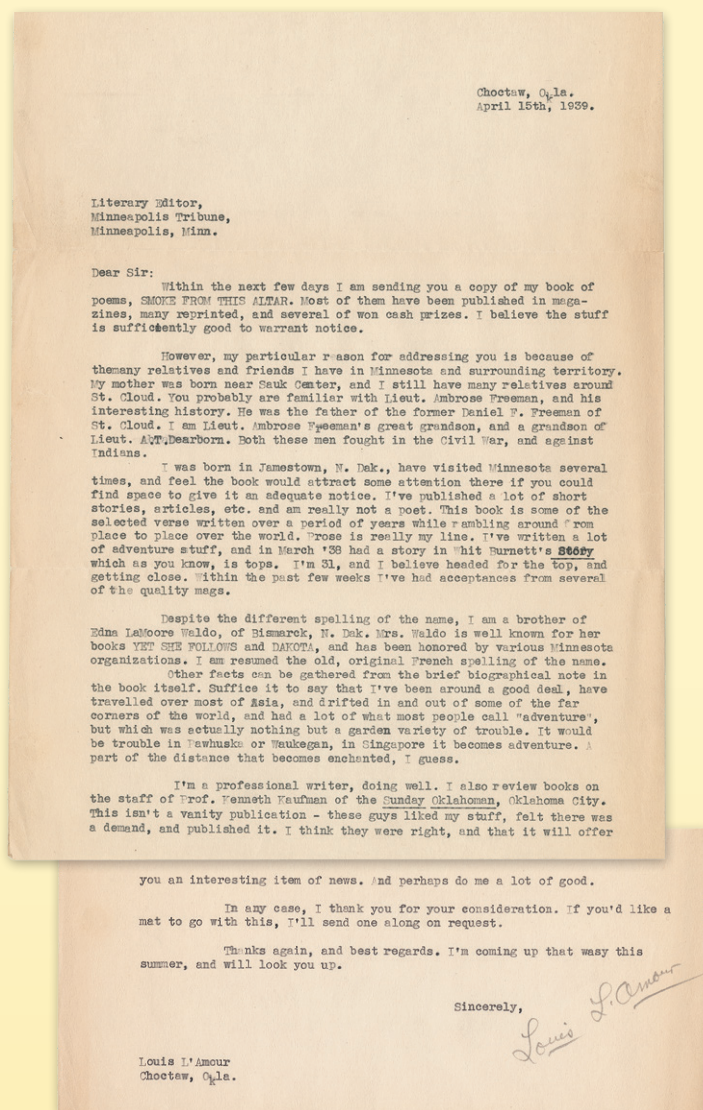

He handed me a typed letter signed by famed western writer Louis L'Amour (1908–88). Beyond the fact that thousands of Minnesotans continue to read his works, L'Amour's Minnesota connections remain tenuous to most of us. Would it be appropriate to add this letter to the MNHS manuscript collection? A quick perusal of the letter indicates a resounding "yes."

Writing on April 15, 1939, from Choctaw, Oklahoma, L'Amour addresses the letter to the literary editor of the Minneapolis Tribune and describes himself as "a professional writer, doing well." He will be sending the editor a copy of his first book, a collection of poems entitled Smoke from This Altar. He has targeted the Minneapolis Tribune because of his connections to Minnesota: his mother was born near Sauk Centre; many relatives remain in the St. Cloud area; he is a great grandson of Lieutenant Ambrose Freeman and a grandson of Lieutenant A. T. Dearborn—Minnesotans who both "fought in the Civil War, and against Indians."¹

He notes that he is the brother of acclaimed author Edna LaMoore Waldo of North Dakota (two of whose works are in the Gale Family Library at MNHS) and explains that he "resumed the old, original French spelling" of their last name. He unabashedly pronounces, "I'm 31, and I believe headed for the top, and getting close." His prediction did not fail: his published work encompasses more than 100 volumes—including short stories, novels, and nonfiction—with hundreds of millions of copies in print.

With L'Amour's Minnesota connections verified, merely having a L'Amour signature in MNHS collections would be noteworthy; having his signature over a substantive letter that he wrote is fantastic.

After cataloging, the L'Amour letter will be available in the Gale Family Library with a digitized version linked to the catalog record. The donor of the letter, a local rare book dealer, told Coleman, "This item belongs in your collection where it can be appreciated by the public and not simply in a private collection to be appreciated by a select few." MNHS is grateful for such friends.

Louis L'Amour letter

And as for that review request? From a search of the online index to the Minneapolis Tribune for 1939 and 1940, it appears that the newspaper did not give L'Amour the publicity he sought in this letter.

—Duane P. Swanson,
curator of manuscripts

1. Ambrose Freeman settled in Stearns County in 1857, served with the First Minnesota Mounted Rangers, and was killed in 1862 in Dakota Territory during the US–Dakota War. Abraham Truman Dearborn (1837–1911) married one of Freeman's daughters; Dearborn fought in the Civil War with Company G of the Third Minnesota Regiment.

Copyright of Minnesota History is the property of the Minnesota Historical Society, and its content may not be copied or emailed to multiple sites or users or posted to a listserv without the copyright holder's express written permission: contact us.

Individuals may print or download articles for personal use.

To request permission for educational or commercial use, contact us. Include the author's name and article title in the body of your message. But first--

If you think you may need permission, here are some guidelines:

Students and researchers

- You do not need permission to quote or paraphrase portions of an article, as long as your work falls within the fair use provision of copyright law. Using information from an article to develop an argument is fair use. Quoting brief pieces of text in an unpublished paper or thesis is fair use. Even quoting in a work to be published can be fair use, depending on the amount quoted. Read about fair use here: <http://www.copyright.gov/fls/fl102.html>
- You should, however, always credit the article as a source for your work.

Teachers

- You do not need permission to incorporate parts of an article into a lesson.
- You do need permission to assign an article, either by downloading multiple copies or by sending students to the online pdf. There is a small per-copy use fee for assigned reading. Contact us for more information.

About Illustrations

- Minnesota History credits the sources for illustrations at the end of each article. Minnesota History itself does not hold copyright on images and therefore cannot grant permission to reproduce them.
- For information on using illustrations owned by the Minnesota Historical Society, see MHS Library FAQ.